VWBPE Background

Virtual Worlds Best Practices in Education is a global grass-roots community event focusing on education in immersive virtual environments. This open conference is organized by educators and is open to everyone to provide an opportunity to showcase the learning that takes place in this community of practice. All educators, librarians, non-profits, designers, and developers are encouraged to present, attend and take part in this discussion of collaborative deeper learning and co-presence in virtual worlds and games.

The Global Classroom

Virtual Worlds Best Practices in Education is a meaningful way for presenters to share their research and experience about the rich learning systems in virtual worlds and games. This free online conference is produced entirely by volunteers. Conference proceedings are published as the Journal of Virtual Studies by Rockcliffe University Consortium.

What are the Goals of VWBPE?

To the best ability possible, VWBPE provides educational and networking opportunities that are relevant to educational curriculum development utilizing virtual environments and “best practices”.

These include

- helping to build community through extension of learning best practices to practical application of those ideas and techniques;
- providing networking opportunities for educators and the communities that help support education;
- providing access to current innovations, trends, ideas, case studies, and other best practices for educators and the communities that help support education;
- showcasing what is new and unique in virtual and augmented reality; and
- enabling designers and developers responsible for creation of content used by educators to showcase their products and services.

What qualifies as a virtual world?

A virtual world is an online community that takes the form of a unique environment through which users can interact with one another and use and create ideas irrespective of time and space. Virtual worlds can be either 2D or 3D. They may be co-located or distributed. The core aspect that defines a virtual space is that a virtual environment provides a uniquely shared space for emerging relationships and serves as a foundation for the development of knowledge creation and sharing.

Examples include Second Life, OpenSim, Unity, Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter, Pinterest, World of Warcraft, Eve Online and many others. These virtual environments are characterized by an open social presence and where the direction of the platform's evolution is manifest in the community. This is unlike systems such as WebEx, Sococo, JoinMe, and other platforms which are focused on more utilitarian purposes to a closed audience.

Attendance

Over 1000 attendees representing over 30 countries participate in online presentations including theoretical research, application of best practices, virtual world tours, hands-on workshops, discussion panels, machinima presentations, and exhibits. You do not have to be a formal academic to participate. Our community includes those in the education field, those that support educators through products and services, and those accomplishments, and creative works, have been inspired by curriculums involving digital media.

Accessibility

The VWBPE conference spends time with various non-profit support organizations to ensure that the conference is as accessible as possible for persons with disabilities. VWBPE takes pride in providing opportunities for people with disabilities to have meaningful engagement in all aspects of our conference including leadership positions and skill development.

Marketing Opportunity

Marketing your products and services to the VWBPE Conference provides many benefits to your organization during and after the conference. As a sponsor of this event, your organization can associate its name with a high profile and growing annual event. One that reaches a broad international audience, is growing in global recognition, and has become a sustainable event on an annual basis.

As a sponsor, your organization gains the following competitive advantages:

- High visibility with leaders in the field of extended reality, virtualization, and collaboration
- Opportunities to raise brand awareness globally both during the conference and after
- Opportunities to promote your products/services through presentations and/or exhibits
- Outreach to a broad spectrum of teachers, administrators, and business leaders

Use of eXtended Reality (XR) technologies have become common place in mainstream education, non-profit and business settings. VWBPE is one of the definitive events bringing together educators/trainers, practitioners, administrators and policy makers from around the world to present, discuss and review ongoing developments in the fields of extended reality, 3D virtualization, its applications, and opportunities.

What We Need & What You Get

As a sponsor of the Virtual Worlds Best Practices in Education Conference, your organization will realize the following benefits highlighting your organization, brand, and current marketing communications.

- Access to technology that can be used as part of the conference venue;
- Access to provide demonstrations and workshops of your products and services;
- Opportunity in getting your software and/or hardware into the classroom;
- Increased brand awareness; and
- Opportunities to network directly with a specific demographic component of your market

Items of high interest that the VWBPE Conference are interested in include

- Cash Contributions;
- Access to technology both software and hardware as may be appropriate;
- Opportunities to network directly with your senior management and product designers; and
- Items that can be given to conference attendees;

Cash Contributions

Many aspects of our program cannot be fully realized without cash contributions. Funding goes completely (100%) to program related activities. Funds are used to help support our information systems, development of archives, publications, live video streaming, social activities, swag bag materials for conference attendees, buildings supplies (mesh 3D objects), and graphics designs.

As a community run event our conference budget is extremely modest compared to other conferences with sponsorship levels ranging from $250 to $1500. No other conference anywhere can deliver this type of return on investment value to a specific market segment.

Access to Technology

As a virtual conference VWBPE is different in that we have a heavy reliance on technology to engage with our conference attendees. Our conference participants highly value opportunities to see, or participate in, demonstrations, workshops, and hands-on practicums related to 3D gaming, 3D content creation, games and simulations, social media, collaboration tools, video and audio broadcasting tools, and almost everything digital.

Further, opportunities do not necessarily need to begin or end with only digital content. If an opportunity exists to interact with various hardware components such as Google Cardboard to Oculus Rift, GoPros, Drone Quadcopters and everything in-between, chances are we have a conference segment that can participate, or at the very least, will be highly interested in seeing how such hardware can be used in an educational setting.

Networking Showcase

There will be opportunities for contributors to directly engage with conference participants. Our community is both tech savvy and information junkies. Given an opportunity our conference attendees will engage on your products and services in a thoughtful and considered dialogue.

What we are asking for is time during the conference to engage directly with senior executives and product managers.

Our conference participants want to know about you and how your products and services can best be used to support education. Your organization can gain immensely from these discussions to learn about the issues and challenges facing the educational community. This would include areas that may be serving from blocking educators from making better use of your products and how to make your products and services more effective when working with persons with disabilities.

Scavenger Hunt

VWBPE runs an annual scavenger hunt that has become highly popular with the conference attendees. As a sponsor, at the bronze level or above, we will highlight your organization as part of the hunt to help highlight your organization, products, or services. This product placement inclusion is an exclusive perk for sponsors only.

Attendee Gift Bags

No conference is complete without some perks for the various attendees and a virtual conference is no different. While everyone loves getting that coffee mug or pen set, meaningful items in a virtual setting need to be more creative and things that can be used digitally. Access to beta software, collaboration opportunities, educational discounts, and arrangements for on/off-site product demonstrations, all have a more meaningful impact where educators can build these opportunities into the planning cycle.

The benefits of a March conference is that it provides conference attendees an opportunity to experiment with these products and services and to provide recommendations for incorporation into their classroom programs near the end of the school year when most of the planning is starting and budget requests are made for the 2020-21 academic year.
